

This week's films span the blockbuster to the radical. Steven Spielberg's sci-fi epic Disclosure Day, a tale of conspiracy, fear, and humanity's search for the truth, starring Emily Blunt, Josh O'Connor, Colin Firth, and many more familiar faces.

Closer to home, debut Scottish director Seán Dunn's offbeat, darkly funny character study, The Fall of Sir Douglas Weatherford stars Peter Mullan as a grieving tour guide guarding his ancestor's legacy; join our Q&A with Dunn on Fri 12 June, 19:30. We also welcome co-directors Lena Vurma and Thor Klein for a Q&A on Leonora in the Morning Light, the story of Surrealist artist Leonora Carrington.

Award-winning documentary Toroboro: The Name of the Plants, Adrián Balseca's Artist's Choice for his exhibition In the Forest Ruins, visits the Waorani people and their fight for survival. For Pride month, we join Dundee Pride for a rare screening of Pink Narcissus, a hallucinogenic queer landmark newly restored in 4K.

Fri 12 - Thu 18 June

Disclosure Day (12A, 2h25m)
