The most talked-about film of 2026 arrives this week, along with this year's Palme d'Or winner, a David Bowie sci-fi classic and more. You Can See Everything finally makes its UK debut and lives up to the hype. This mind-bending, shape-shifting documentary about Elizabeth Holmes will leave you reeling and dying to discuss it.

Sebastian Stan and Reinate Reinsve star in the complex and thought-provoking Cannes favourite Fjord, as strict conservative parents who run afoul of Norwegian child-protection services, and our Bowie on Film season begins with Nicolas Roeg's sci-fi masterpiece The Man Who Fell to Earth for its 50th anniversary.

Plus, French Film Festival continues with the fascinating film history documentary Lumière, Le Cinéma!, we welcome Dundee Mountain Film Festival with The Everest Dream and a Q&A, the dazzling epic La Bola Negra continues, and there are more chances to see DCA audience favourites Wildwood, NAZA, and Ghosts: The Possession of Button House.

Fri 20 - Thu 26 November

You Can See Everything (15, 2h54m)
Theranos fraudster Elizabeth Holmes asks a documentary crew to film her home life before her prison sentence with unsettling results.

Fjord (15, 2h26m)
This year's Palme d'Or winner follows an extremely conservative family's fight to get their kids back after child abuse allegations.

The Man Who Fell To Earth (50th Anniv.) (15, 2h19m)
Our Bowie on Film season begins with Nicolas Roeg's visionary sci-fi classic about a peaceful alien hosted, then trapped, by humanity.

La Bola Negra (15, 2h39m)
This epic, heart-rending, era-spanning love story is a must-see on the big screen and has emerged as an awards season favourite.

French Film Festival: Lumière, Le Cinéma! (U, 1h46m)
Travel back in time to the dawn of the moving image in this documentary featuring more than 100 shorts by the fathers of cinema.
