

Olivia Colman and Benedict Cumberbatch are at the top of their game as a married couple at war with each other in The Roses, arriving at DCA this week. Filled with dark comedy, this new film is a fresh take on 1989's The War of the Roses.

Spike Lee reimagines Kurosawa's High and Low in crime thriller Highest 2 Lowest, there's more time to see Eva Victor's directorial debut Sorry, Baby and we conclude the Oslo Stories Trilogy with its final film, Sex. Elsewhere, documentary Put Your Soul on Your Hand and Walk is an intimate, first-hand perspective of life in Gaza.

We're screening Battleship Potemkin with Pet Shop Boys score for the film's centenary and our next Discovery Family Film Club film is hand-drawn animation Phantom Boy. Finally, our Paul Thomas Anderson season begins with Magnolia* (35mm) - see all three films in this retrospective for the special price of £24 when booked at the same time. Enjoy!

Fri 5 - Thu 11 September

The Roses (15, 1h45m)

Ivy and Theo seem like the perfect couple - but soon, their marriage unravels into a mess of resentment, revenge and fierce competition.

The Roses

Sorry, Baby (15, 1h43m)

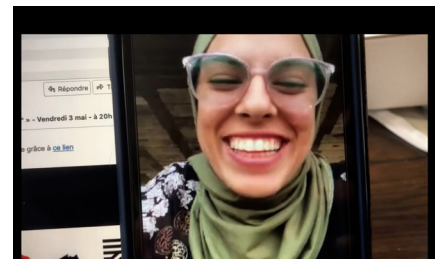

Heartache and humour combine in this acclaimed directorial debut, which follows a young woman trying to move on after an assault.

Sorry, Baby

Put Your Soul on Your Hand and Walk (12A, 1h50m)

The realities of life in Gaza are portrayed via video calls with Palestinian photojournalist Fatma Hassona, who was later killed.

Put Your Soul on Your Hand and Walk

Highest 2 Lowest (15, 2h14m)

A music mogul (Denzel Washington) is caught in a life-or-death dilemma in Spike Lee's crime thriller set in contemporary New York.

Oslo Stories Trilogy: Sex (12A, 1h40m)

Two men reconsider their stances on sex, gender and identity in the last of this trilogy of films exploring intimacy in modern Norway.
